

Submit un article.

EspacesTemps.net is an Open Access journal that relies heavily on unsolicited submissions from authors outside the editorial team. Articles published on EspacesTemps.net, which can be consulted free of charge, offer optimal visibility to their authors, given their well-referenced status on the Internet.

The editorial team receives a large number of articles, which means that it has to manage them on a “just-in-time” basis in order to meet its commitments. The following instructions have been designed to enhance the efficiency of the magazine’s production chain, and are provided in the interests of authors, who are invited to adhere to them fully and without reservation.

Proposals.

The author submits a proposal for an original article to the editorial team, with an abstract/synopsis of less than 3,000 characters.

The editorial team examines the project (with regard to its interest and coherence with the editorial line) and, if it is accepted, sends the author an outline of the editorial process and a document summarising the expected formal rules.

Authors interested in producing a book review are also invited to make themselves known. Once the project has been validated by the editorial team, authors are informed of the mandatory review passages.

Reviewing process.

EspacesTemps.net offers a range of review types, including double-blind reviews, at the request of authors.

In line with its editorial policy and as part of the new scientific publication practices known as open peer review, the journal offers a double-transparent review, in which the names of authors and reviewers are known to each other.

Book reviews are evaluated by the EspacesTemps.net editorial board.

Copyright.

By publishing in EspacesTemps.net, the author agrees to assign their copyright to the journal.

The author is permitted to distribute and reproduce their article on another platform without requesting the journal's agreement, provided that credit is given to EspacesTemps.net as the initial publication with full referencing of the article.

In the case of open-archive deposits, the author is permitted to deposit the full version of the article, provided that the original publication on EspacesTemps.net is referenced in full.

Contact us